An Arkansas man has a cornfield of 1,000 acres, on land which was until recently covered by a lake, which it is claimed will yield 200 bushels to the acre. The corn was sowed broadcast and the stalks grew so close together that a rabbit couldn't work his way between them. This beats that South Carolina story of a big yield, or the liar beats the other fellow.

The bike scorchers must be making things hot in Chicago, and the police authorities hot also. The policemen have been ordered to shoot any scorcher who refuses to stop when halted. But the policeman who obeyed that order and shot some one, might find himself in an ugly fix later when arraigned for murder or something of that kind.

SERVING A WARRANT.

Deputy Sheriff Fonville's Wild Chase of a Negro Wanted for False Pretence.

Yesterday morning a warrant was issued by Justice Bunting for the arrest of Zimmerman Newkirk, colored, charged with false pretence. The warrant was placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff William Fonville, colored, to be served, and the deputy at once started out in quest of the alleged offender. About 4 o'clock Deputy Fonville discovered his man placidly leaning against the outer walls of 'Squire McGowan's temple of justice on Princess street, between Second and Third, and forthwith started to make the arrest, but Newkirk suddenly became aware of the approaching danger and took his departure by means of his two legs, which he vibrated at a rapid rate. Deputy Fonville was, too, moved to action, and off he went like a rocket in the wake of Newkirk. At the corner of Seventh and Red Cross streets Deputy Fonville feeling that the pace set by Newkirk was too hot, pulled out his pistol and fired several times, thinking that this would frighten the pace-maker and bring him to a stop, but Newkirk never once faltered in his "race for liberty." Deputy Fonville then, thinking under the existing circumstances that a capture was dubious, halted a passing horse and wagon, and embarking thereon resumed the race, and had the satisfaction of overhauling his man at the corner of Eighth and Hanover streets, and walking him leisurely to jail. Newkirk will be tried by Justice Bunting this morning at 10 o'clock.

John Robinson & Franklin Bros.' Circus.

The time for the appearance of the John Robinson & Franklin Bros.' circus in this city is drawing near, as the date is next Monday, November 1st. This huge institution is the only one to present such well-known and high-salaried performers as Miss Rose Dockrill, the world's greatest equestrienne; Mr. Frank Miller and Robert Stickney, who stand at the head of the bareback riders of the profession; the five Cornalias family, Europe's foremost acrobats; Seigrist and Silbon, who are the acknowledged monarchs of the air; a double troupe of Royal Japanese performers; Miss Dollie Miller, the greatest lady acrobatic rider on either side of the Atlantic; the three famous French grotesques, the De Zallos; a troupe of twenty humanly educated horses and ponderous elephants, besides other novelties which can only be counted by the score. It is also a well known fact that these great shows present the finest zoological collection in America, and a hippodrome of surpassing merit. The grand street parade, which moves from the show grounds each day promptly at 10 a. m., is worth coming miles to see, and is the combined parades of both of these monster tented amusements.

CITY'S ARTESIAN WELL.

Work Will Begin in About Ten Days at Hilton.

The time for the drilling of the artesian well has about arrived. Mr. James Storey, of the firm of Thompson & Storey, Wheeling, W. Va., which firm is under contract with the Clarendon Water Works Company for the drilling of an artesian well at the company's station at Hilton, arrived in the city yesterday, accompanied by Messrs. J. O. Ingelfield and Warren Conner, also of Wheeling, who will assist Mr. Storey in directing the drilling of the well. The drilling will not commence before about ten days, as that time will be consumed in unpacking and placing together the apparatus, which arrived about a week ago. There is no telling when the work will be concluded, as it is not certain how deep the well will have to be drilled before good water is reached. The work of unloading the apparatus is now going on at Hilton, and the large derrick, which is necessary, is being built.

President—Jno. F. Divine.
Treasurer—Geo. W. Kidder.
Chief Engineer—Jno. C. Chase.
Superintendent—W. F. Robertson.

Partridge Shooting.

The partridge hunter is bagging some game in spite of the bad weather. One hunter brought down twenty or thirty birds yesterday. In this connection it is learned that the bird law isn't as strictly enforced as it might be. In this county partridges were shot long before Oct. 15, the date when it became lawful to shoot them. In some of the counties where Nov. 1 is the date people are shooting partridges right along already.

Turned Back by Quarantine Officers.

Quarantine Officer H. H. Woebse, stationed on the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad, yesterday morning stopped a lady and several children at Castle Haynes who were coming from Alabama to this city to visit friends. Officer Woebse telegraphed for further instructions, and was answered not to allow the party to come to the city, but to request them to return to their starting point, which officer Woebse did.

Friday Bargain Day.

To-morrow, Friday, the C. W. Polvogt Co. will start their bargain day sales again; they will have 100 great bargains which are to be sold for cash only. Those desiring dress goods, carpets, table linen, hosiery, &c., will do well to attend their Bargain Day sales. All new goods to offer, as their stock is an entirely new one and no old goods to sell off as bargains. We predict for them a big rush. †

THE BONITZ-QUELCH WEDDING.

Ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church in the Presence of a Large Gathering of Relatives and Friends.

Within the walls of the First Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon at 5.30 o'clock Mr. Bertram Quelch and Miss Gerda Louise Bonitz became man and wife, the impressive ceremony being conducted by Rev. Peyton H. Hoge, pastor of the church. The interior of the edifice was profusely and yet truly artistically decorated for the occasion with ferns, palms, chrysanthemums, and the rarest of pot-plants. The church was taxed to its utmost seating capacity by the relatives and friends of the popular couple long before the ceremony was commenced, which was promptly at the appointed hour.

While the strains of Mendelssohn's beautiful wedding march were floating out on the air, direct from the organ, played by Prof. Russell, the bridal party entered in the following order: Mr. H. E. Bonitz, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ed. Huggins, the two ushers; Miss Lesette Bonitz, sister of the bride, and Miss Hattie Burkhimer, bridesmaids; Miss Lula Helbig, of Lynchburg, Va., cousin of the bride, maid of honor; Mr. Will Bonitz, of Washington, D. C., cousin of the bride. The bride, attired becomingly in white organdie and veil, and carrying a choice bunch of bride's roses, then entered, leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. J. H. W. Bonitz, and walked up to the altar, where the groom and his best man and brother, Mr. J. P. Quelch, were in waiting, and in the midst of these dear friends and relatives, Miss Gerda Louise Bonitz and Mr. Bertram Quelch were pronounced man and wife; and as Lohengren's wedding mach was being rendered on the organ, the happy couple and their attendants left the sacred edifice.

Mr. and Mrs. Quelch left on the 7.15 o'clock north-bound Atlantic Coast Line train for a tour to many cities of interest, including Washington, Boston, New York and Toronto, Canada. Upon the departure of the newly wedded couple the bridal party went to the Bonitz Hotel and were served with a magnificent wedding supper.

The bride is a daughter of our clever townsman, Mr. J. H. W. Bonitz, and is one of Wilmington's most popular daughters. The groom holds a position in the auditing department of the Atlantic Coast Line, and is well liked and thought of by all.

At the wedding the gentlemen of the bridal party wore the conventional black, with a small white carnation backed with a fernleaf displayed on the lapel of their coats. The maid of honor was habited in white organdie, and carried a bouquet of La France roses. Miss Lesette Bonitz was attired in lemon-colored organdie, and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums, and Miss Burkhimer in blue organdie, and carried a bunch of white chrysanthemums and ferns.

Mrs. Charles Sherman, of Lynchburg, Va., and Mr. Charles Irving, of England, were also in attendance at the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Quelch will be at home after November 25th at No. 713 Chesnut street.

INLAND QUARANTINE.

The Advance Agent of the Woodward-Warren Company in an Unpleasant Predicament.

It is certainly hard to get through Wilmington's quarantine line without giving an account of yourself, as advance agent J. W. Guildtouch, of the Woodward-Warren Company, which company will be at the Opera House all next week, has discovered without the use of the X rays, and he has now a recollection of being put off a train at Navassa along with his baggage, and being allowed to watch the train fade away in the distance. It seems that for the last two months the Woodward-Warren Company have been playing in North and South Carolina, and yesterday, in accordance with his duties, Mr. Guildtouch left Columbia, S. C., where the troupe is now filling a week's engagement, to come to Wilmington, and thinking that he was endowed with unusual conversational powers did not arm himself with a health certificate; but, when quarantine officer J. W. Smith saw him he found his fascinating charms were of no avail, and was also made to realize the fact that he (Guildtouch) was not "so warm." So Guildtouch was hustled off the train at Navassa and left to commune with himself, in company with two or three dismal-looking trunks, until Captain of Police Robert Green, after ascertaining that he was all right, went to Navassa and "chucked" him and his baggage on a shifting engine and landed him in the city.

The Merchants' Association.

Mr. P. Heinsberger, secretary, furnishes the STAR the following:

The Merchants' Association of Wilmington, N. C., is an organization of persons engaged in the mercantile business. Its purpose is to provide suitable offices for its meetings; to acquire, preserve and disseminate valuable business information; to protect its members against unjust and unlawful exactions; to reform abuses; to settle differences between members; to promote among them good fellowship and more enlarged and friendly intercourse, and to advocate such other principles and measures as may conduce to the prosperity and commercial interest of the city of Wilmington.

Marriage in East Wilmington.

At 8 o'clock last evening Mr. A. J. Shepard and Miss Lillie Davis, both of East Wilmington, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. Robert Smith, by Rev. T. H. Sutton, pastor of Market Street Methodist church, in the presence of a few invited guests, who wished for the young couple a life of prosperity and happiness.

— Capt. J. H. Sloan, of South Carolina, spent a few hours in the city yesterday.

L'AGILE COTILLON CLUB.

Second German of the Season Last Night at Germania Hall.

Last night at Germania hall L'Agile Cotillon Club gave the second german of the season, and twenty-four of Wilmington's lovely daughters and a corresponding number of her gallant sons graced the occasion and danced the dreamy waltz and the merry two-steps on the glass-like ball room floor. Mr. Warren Johnson directed the dance and led a select and pretty number of figures, and all were executed gracefully by the participants. Prof. P. Cianciarulo's Boston Italian string band furnished the music for the occasion.

The ladies and their escorts in attendance, were as follows, viz: Miss Mary Jennings Bellamy, Alf Moffitt; Miss Marie Baldwin, T. C. DeRosset; Fannie Green, Dawson Latham; Annie Lee, Henry McFarland; Bettie DeRosset, Geo. D. Crow; Jane Meares, T. M. Green; Marie Peschau, Lonnie Southerland; Cary Davis, J. T. Munds; Fair Payne, E. P. Willard; Lizzie Peck, T. W. Davis; Annie B. DeRosset, Richard Bradley; Anna Peck, Fred. Dick; Mary T. Peck, J. W. Stevenson; Lizzie Cotchett, J. RALEIGH NEWS BUDGET.

N. C. Railroad Lease Investigation—Stockholders Propose Application for a Receiver — Gov. Russell Said to be Squandering Funds of the Road.

[Special Star Correspondence.]

RALEIGH, N. C., October 27.

For the past two days the weather observer has predicted fair weather and both days there has been a down-pour of rain.

Dr. R. H. Lewis, the secretary of the Board of Health and well known specialist, will be married to Mrs. A. B. Foreman, of Washington, D. C.

The statement is made that one of the stockholders of the North Carolina Railway will make application for a receiver for the road, on the grounds that the Governor is squandering the funds of the road. There are a large number of stockholders who favor this plan. They say Governor Russell is hiring a large number of lawyers in the State with the object of furthering his own political ends, and that the treasury of the road is footing the bills. There is no doubt about the fact that Russell is "burning" the company's funds, to use a street expression. There is no telling what the lease investigation farce has cost the State. It is also noticeable that Treasurer Worth doesn't dare to veto one of the Governor's orders, but when a small matter from some of the other departments comes up, he sits down on it very frequently.

Incorporation papers will be taken out to-day for the new morning paper which is to be established here. The paper will be Democratic. Subscriptions of stock have been taken by leading Democrats all over the State. The name of the paper has not been determined.

WILMINGTON POLICE.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Oct. 27.

To the Editor of the Morning Star:

I notice in your issue of 26th, a paragraph commending the vigilance of the police inspectors in holding me up at Navassa on Sunday.

Relative to this, I have to say that had I so desired I could have come into Wilmington with the utmost ease, as others have done and are doing every day.

It was only from information derived directly from me by letter, and at my request, that they knew anything of my whereabouts, and, therefore, they are entitled to no credit for extra vigilance on my account.

The Captain of Police did not spend the whole day at Navassa, as you state. He did not stop a minute after the arrival of the A. C. L. train—not long enough to read my health certificates, or to give a minute's hearing. He, accompanied by Dr. McMillan, came out to see a man from Atlanta, who was on his way to his father's death-bed in Goldsboro and only asked permission to pass through Wilmington. They remained about ten minutes and returned on the engine, taking this unfortunate applicant for their leniency back to isolation until 7 o'clock p. m.

"Credit where credit is due" is my motto. If the police force would, by their vigilance, elicit the confidence of the citizens of Wilmington, in preventing incendiary fires, numerous burglaries, riotous and boisterous conduct of drunken outlaws; if, in fact, they could be found anywhere when needed, or their existence be realized after ten o'clock at night, then unquestionably they would deserve the praise, support and admiration of all law-abiding citizens, and from no one would they receive a greater share than from my humble self.

As I have remarked elsewhere, the city authorities have shown wisdom in utilizing the "police force" as quarantine inspectors—they are immune from all infectious disease—in fact, they are so slow in the discharge of their duty in Wilmington that "they can't catch even yellow fever."

Respectfully,
GEO. P. COTCHETT.

THURSDAY MORNING, OCT. 28, 1897

REPUBLICAN TESTIMONY.

In commenting yesterday on the Hanna outlook in Ohio we published an extract from an address to the Republicans of Ohio by Hon. A. L. Conger, ex-Republican Congressman from Akron. Col. Conger is a friend of Senator Foraker, and a member of Governor Bushnell's staff, but he has blood in his eye for Hanna and in this address, which has been widely circulated over the State, he gives the reasons why. Some of them, most of them, are not only good reasons why Mark Hanna should be defeated, but why the Republican party, of which he is the recognized manipulator, should be defeated.

While showing the utter unworthiness of Mr. Hanna as a man to be entrusted with the management of a party professing to have high and patriotic purposes he makes the following allusion to the relations between Hanna and the President: "We esteem President McKinley highly, but there is no disguising the fact that Mr. Hanna is really the President as far as dictating national policy is concerned." This is an Ohio man and an Ohio Republican talking about an Ohio President and an Ohio Senator. He calls it a fact, and he has very good reasons for talking as he does. Hasn't Mark Hanna in his speeches in Ohio said that he picked out McKinley and put him in the race for President and elected him? But hasn't the relation of Maker and Made been apparent to every one who has kept an eye on both men since the Presidential campaign opened and since the election? McKinley was in Hanna's hands as much as a theatrical performer or a prize fighter would be in the hands of his manager. And so it has been since the election and the President's inauguration. Hanna has been the shadow over the President, and was with him everywhere he moved and in everything he did. When he has seen fit to exercise it he has had absolute control over public patronage not only in his own but in other States, and has appointed negro postmasters and collectors of customs in the South in payment of bargains entered into to secure votes for his protege in the national convention. No wonder that the plastic McKinley rests under the imputation of being President only by proxy, the real President being Mark Hanna.

But we refer to the address of Col. Conger not so much on account of its allusions to Mark Hanna as a leader, or to his influence upon the President, but because the reasons which he gives for opposition to Hanna are equally good reasons for opposition to the party which has permitted itself to be controlled by Hanna and which is to-day by the showing of Col. Conger pursuing policies which plunder the American people out of millions upon millions of dollars annually for the benefit of certain combinations which helped Hanna nominate and elect McKinley. The extract we quoted yesterday showed how the tin Trust furnished Hanna with money to secure the nomination and election of McKinley, and the consideration they received in return for this, the said consideration being $15,000,000 a year in the increased duty on tin-plate. Col. Conger knows something about the tin-plate business for he was in it himself and shows by the following, which we clip from the same address, that the tin-plate establishments were doing splendidly and that there wasn't the slightest reason or excuse for any increase of the tariff duty at all, which was ample under the Wilson tariff. He says:

"Republicans will be anxious to know how money is diverted to the campaign fund in the framing of the Tariff bill. I was one of the first men in this country to build a mill for the manufacture of tin plate at Elwood, Ind. We manufactured under the McKinley bill, which placed a duty of $2.20 on each box of tin plate brought to this country. After fifteen months we turned out tin plate at $1.50 less cost a box than we started the mill. If the tariff had been reduced this much we would have held our own. When I quit the business we were making from our little mill $10,000 a month on a capital of $275,000 actually invested. The mill made in four years $900,000, and was then capitalized at $1,200,000. The wages paid were out of all proportion to those paid in other branches of industry. The Wilson bill reduced the duty to $1.05 per box, and this was more duty than was really required to bring the entire industry to this country."

Notwithstanding the fact that Col. Conger, who built one of the first tinplate mills in the country, which made $10,000 a month on a capital of $275,000 with a protective duty of $2.20 a box, declares that the Wilson duty of $1.05 a box was enough, and more than enough, to "bring the entire industry to this country," they increased the duty 45 cents a box to carry out Hanna's bargain and to put money into the pockets of the tinplate men who pooled with Hanna to nominate and elect McKinley.

When the Dingley bill was under discussion the opponents of its excessive protection took precisely the same position that Col. Conger takes here, that tinplate had protection enough under the Wilson bill, more than enough, and that every cent added to the duty was just that much plunder taken from the American people for the benefit of the grabbers who dictated the duties in consideration of their contributions to campaign funds and the assistance they rendered in the election of McKinley. And now Col. Conger, speaking as a tinplate manufacturer, confirms the arguments of these Democrats and shows the princely dividends the business yielded, and the utter absence of any decent excuse for increasing the duty.

And yet the Republican Representatives and Senators, in spite of the fact that they knew they were plundering the people, in spite of facts presented and protests made, obeyed Hanna's command and carried out the bargain that he made before the election and before the nomination of McKinley with the tin-plate Trust. If Hanna is to be condemned for bargaining with them, should the party which through its President, Congressmen and organs confirmed the bargain and turned the plunder over to them escape? If he is to be condemned they should be still more condemned for he was simply trading on a prospective, and was not guilty of any breach of trust, while they were trusted agents, were guilty of a breach of trust and betrayed the people who trusted them and delegated them with power and they did it knowingly and willingly to carry out an immoral contract.

All that Col. Conger herein says of the tin-plate business is equally applicable to many other lines of business which were also protected for a consideration in the way of money contributed before the election, and for which there is no more justification or excuse than there is for the monstrous plunder of the people for the benefit of the tin Trust.

We trust that Col. Conger will issue some more addresses, for they will make valuable additions to Democratic campaign literature for the next Congressional and Presidential campaigns.

MINOR MENTION.

When yellow fever, cholera, or other imported diseases make their appearance in this country, there is a scare, a hustling to clean up, and a flight, quarantine and counter quarantines, shot-gun patrols of border lines and all that sort of thing, and yet these are diseases, preventable diseases, too, which are not imported, which prove much more fatal than either yellow fever or cholera, and yet they are not looked upon with one-tenth of the dread these imported, but really more harmless diseases are. They come and go; the others remain, and daily increase the number of graves in the cemeteries. Scarlet fever, for instance, is prevalent now in one section of England and is killing more people than the yellow fever is in this country, Typhoid fever carries off its victims by the thousands every year, and typhoid fever is, perhaps in nine cases out of ten, the result of impure drinking water. This has been sufficiently demonstrated by the reduction in the rate from this disease in cities where attention has been given to the purification of the water the people drink. The following, which we clip from an exchange, gives some interesting figures showing the effect of purified water on the health of communities:

"The death rate in Philadelphia from typhoid fever is ten times as great as in The Hague, and the total deaths from that cause in the Pennsylvania city in a single year are as many as the entire yellow fever of the South for the past eighteen years.

"The city freest from typhoid fever is The Hague, in Holland which uses water filtered from sand dunes. The average annual death rate there from typhoid fever in the five years 1894-'95, inclusive, is 4 9 per 100,000 of population. Rotterdam, with a death rate of 5 2 is second on the list. Other important cities rank in comparative immunity from typhoid as follows: Dresden, 4; Berlin, 8; Amsterdam, 10; London, 13; Edinburgh, 14; Brooklyn, (N. Y.), 16; New York, 17; New Orleans, 19; Hamburg, 21; Paris, 25; Milwaukee, 28; Boston, 30; Detroit, 31; Buffalo, 35; Providence, 36; San Francisco, 38; Minneapolis, 40; Baltimore, 41; Newark, 42; St. Louis, 43; Philadelphia, 45. In the five years covered by statistics Philadelphia had 243 typhoid deaths to each 100 000 of its population, while The Hague in the same period had but 24 and Rotterdam 26, and all the other cities using filtered water a rate nearly as low. The Philadelphia typhoid death rate means about 2,480 deaths from typhoid, and as only 5 per cent. on the average of typhoid cases are fatal, it is estimated that there must have been between 40,000 and 50 000 typhoid cases in that city in 1890-'94, inclusive."

There has been a decided improvement in those sections in the South where this disease has been prevalent, since the sinking of artesian wells has begun. But as everybody cannot have artesian wells, and every town cannot have a water supply system that will ensure pure water every family can take its own precautions, and save doctors' bills and save life by boiling the water used for drinking. It is a little troublesome, but not much when they get used to it, and nothing in comparison to the benefits derived.

* * *

Mr. Henry George and his campaign managers showed good judgment and discretion in deciding not to invite Mr. Bryan to New York, and we think Mr. Bryan showed decided discretion in keeping out of New York. While the result of the election there may have more or less bearing upon national politics, still it is a local fight in the local features of which the people of that city are more directly interested, and they might very properly resent the interference of outsiders just as many of them are now resenting the interference of the Washington administration and the imported boosters of Gen. Tracy, Platt's man. Mr. Bryan has shown good sense not only to keep out of that fight, but in refraining from expressing any opinion that would commit him to either of the contending factions. While Mr. George and his committee have shown good judgment in not calling upon Mr. Bryan, Mr. George has not shown as good judgment in making his war especially upon Tammany, and Mr. Croker, the so-called Tammany "Boss," whom he says he will do his best "to send to the penitentiary" if elected Mayor. There is a Republican machine in New York controlled by a Boss—one Mr. Platt,—who happens also to be a United States Senator, but Republicans who are supporting candidate Low score this machine and this Boss, but Mr. George seems to reserve all his denunciation for the Democratic machine and the Democratic Boss. Perhaps he thinks the Low Republicans can attend to the Republican machine and Republican Boss, but in our opinion he doesn't show level-headed gumption in not taking a whack at them, and at Mr. Low's party also, while he scores old Tammany and Boss Croker.

WHERE BURGLARS QUAIL.

A Look at the Strong Room of a Great New York Bank.

No little dramatic interest is latent in these huge boxes of heavy masonry, of the dimensions of a large room, with their thousands of interior safes, each with its own locks of various complexity and strength. In a single vault on Broadway there are 15,000 compartments, from a size just sufficient to contain a dozen railroad bonds to the huge caverns of masonry that hold tons upon tons of silver and gold.

The main doors which furnish entrance to the great box are the points on which the utmost mechanical skill is lavished. No burglar would ever think of trying to effect an entrance through the walls. If he disposed of the watchman who tramps around the outside in a little alley between the outer walls of the building and the vault, it would require days to drill sufficient holes to take a solid piece out of the wall. But if a burglar can only overcome the lock of one of the main doors there is the entrance ready made.

These doors are marvelous. One of them weighs 15 tons. They are constructed by welding together layers of different hard metals, sometimes seven distinct kinds, so that if an ingenious burglar finds a way of piercing the first an entirely different problem confronts him at the second, and so on. At any moment his drill is likely to make connections with an electric alarm, which not only raises the guards of that vault, but tells the watchmen of half a dozen others, some a mile away, that trouble is at hand. But even if the lock were overcome the monster doors would not open, because a large section of the stone floor has to be sunk down by an electrical device before the bottom of the doors are above the masonry. Just above each main door appears an ominous looking pipe. It can, in the event of burglarious efforts, belch forth boiling water and steam on the assailants below.—C. D. Lanier in Scribner's.

HOLIDAYS THE WORLD OVER.

In Latin-American Countries the People Work Only 200 Days In the Year.

A computation made a short time ago showed that among European countries the two in which wages were highest and the hours of labor least were England and France, whereas the two countries in which wages were smallest and the hours of labor longest were Italy and Russia. In some countries of the world an explanation of the apparent dearth of progressive industry among the inhabitants is to be found perhaps in the recurrence of holidays of a religious, patriotic or purely social character, and many persons who are familiar with the industrial usages in some cities of South and Central America say that there the number of holidays seem to exceed the number of working days. There are in such countries usually not fewer than a dozen church festivals, and there are besides patriotic festivals.

A similar state of affairs exists in all Latin countries and is to be found in the United States, too, when one turns to the legal festivals of Louisiana. There is the holiday of Jan. 8, commemorating the battle of New Orleans; the Mardi Gras on March 2, in New Orleans; Confederate Memorial day in April, Good Friday, All Saints' day, Election day, Louisiana Labor day, on Nov. 25, and Thanksgiving and Christmas days. Florida celebrates the birthday of Jefferson Davis, Texas the anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto and Alabama the day of Mardi Gras. Deducting the Sundays and holidays, the number of working days in the United States, exclusive of the gulf states, is 305. In Russia there are 267 working days; Great Britain has 278; Portugal, 288; Spain, 290; Austria, 292; Italy, 298; Bavaria, Belgium and Brazil, 300 each; Denmark, France, Norway, Saxony, Switzerland and Wurttemberg, 302 each; Sweden, 304; Prussia and Ireland, 305; the Netherlands, 308; Hungary, 312.

It has been found impossible to get any accurate figures from the South American countries, but 200 is the maximum estimate of actual working days in many of them. Of course, if the number of Sundays be subtracted from the total number of days in a year there are left 313, and if one-third of the other days available for work are set apart for holiday purposes it is perfectly clear why there should not be more than 200 working days in a year. In Anglo-Saxon countries and in the United States the special effort of workingmen has been not to reduce the days of labor, but the hours of labor in each day, and thus there has been within the last 20 years a larger reduction, really, of working time in the United States and in Great Britain than in the Latin or Latin-American countries.—New York Sun.

HIS SCHEME WORKED.

The Schoolmaster Gained His Point and Had His Morning Nap.

A Vermont man here tells an incident of Representative H. H. Powers' career as a schoolteacher in Tinmouth, town of Rutland, in days when pedagogues "boarded round." Powers was a little slow in rising and acquired a reputation for this among those thrifty people. In the course of his round of boarding houses of the town he was destined to reach the house of Elihu Cramton, father of the Hon. John W. Cramton, a famous landlord of the Bardwell House. Cramton was known far and wide as an early riser. His regular hour in summer was 3:30 o'clock and in winter 5 o'clock. He ate his breakfast shortly after the rising hour, and every member of the household had to be on hand. Mr. Cramton learned that the schoolmaster's morning habits were too easy going for that community, and he let it be understood that there would be a change in the young man's hour of rising shortly after he reached the Cramton household.

This threat was not long in reaching the young schoolmaster's ears. He formed his plans and bided his time. In the course of events his belongings were transferred to the Cramton house, and he followed them. His room was assigned to him, and he took good care to provide himself with an interesting novel for the first night. When he came in rather late in the evening, he went to his room, bundled himself up—that was not the day of steam heated bedrooms—fixed himself comfortably in a big chair and began his book.

The night was long, and the cold chils played hide and seek up and down the schoolmaster's back, but his candle and book held out. By and by it came 2 o'clock. The book was closed, and Schoolmaster Powers left his room, candle in hand. In a moment he was pounding at the door of Mr. Cramton's room, impatiently and emphatically. After his rat-tat-tat had echoed through the house for some time the old man woke up and yelled out to know what was wanted.

"I want my breakfast," said Powers.

"What time is it?" yelled the landlord.

"It's 2 o'clock. This is my regular hour for breakfast, and I want it. Can't you get up and let me have it?"

The old man soon got himself wide enough awake to appreciate the joke and after a slight but very thoughtful pause shouted back, "Young man, you go right back to bed and sleep as long as you want to."—Washington Post.

Gum Chewer's Tongue.

It is admitted by all sensible people that every pleasure has its attendant pain, and that for every indulgence we must pay a penalty more or less heavy.

It is a new idea, however, that the gum chewer is in danger of a disease that, unless checked, may be the direct cause of a serious malady that will in a short time prove fatal. It is in addition a most painful ill, and one which will at first prove an unsolvable problem to the inexperienced practitioner.

The symptoms are a sensation as though the tongue had been burned by a scalding drink. This is followed by red spots and inflammation along the sides of the tongue near the root. The back of the tongue becomes irritated, and round, red, raw looking patches appear.

It would be interesting to study these indications and learn just how widespread this disease is. Certainly those who have suffered from it are fully alive to its unpleasant possibilities, and as it seems to have escaped the notice of most medical men, or the conditions having been attributed to other causes, a thorough investigation would be of great service to humanity and of much interest to science.—New York Ledger.

Invigorating.

Mrs. Smith (thoughtfully)—I'm afraid I shall have to stop giving Bobby that tonic the doctor left for him.

Mr. Smith (anxiously)—Why, isn't he any better?

Mrs. Smith—Oh, yes. But he has slid down the banisters six times this morning, broken the hall lamp, two vases, a pitcher and a looking glass, and I don't feel as if I could stand much more.—Harper's Bazar.

The Glass Snake.

The superstition that the glass snake breaks in pieces at a sudden alarm and reunites its various parts after the danger is over arises from the fact that when threatened with attack by a bird or animal this snake throws off its tail, which wiggles about on the ground and distracts the attention of the enemy while the snake makes its escape. This peculiar means of eluding attack is practiced also by two or three kinds of lizards. Both snake and lizards grow a new tail in a few weeks.

The parapet projecting over the top of the wall and, pierced with holes to enable the besieged to attack an enemy close to the foot of the wall, was almost contemporaneous with the wall.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. The American "French Mixed."

"In the manufacture of candy," said a diplomatic officer of experience, "there is no doubt that America now leads the world. American candies are about the only ones made of sugar that can be bought in Paris. Though the French have long led the world in this line, they have gradually but surely managed to do away with the use of sugar in their candies, except where they make them for consumption in other countries, and in America in particular. The French people will not buy a confection which is made of sugar alone. They want combinations and depend more upon starches than sugar.

"I think I am safe in saying that sugar made candy is rarely if ever sold in Paris. Of course, it would be made if it was desired, but the people of Paris prefer something else. Two weeks before Christmas I was in Paris, and I had to send to at least a half dozen so called famous candy manufacturers before I could buy any sugar made candies. I could get hundreds of combinations, marshmallows, chocolates and things in that line. In Germany it is much the same way."—Washington Star.

General Felix Agnus.

General Felix Agnus, the proprietor of the Baltimore American, has been obliged again to deny the story that when he came to this country he began his career as a barber in this city. "I came to this country," he says, "under engagement as a chaser and sculptor to the great firm of Tiffany & Co. of New York, from which establishment I went direct to the ranks as a private soldier, though not speaking a word of the English language."—New York Tribune.

Objection Sustained.

"And after the robbery you just took a walk?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

"I object," yelled the excited young lawyer for the prisoner, "to any such base insinuation! The walk was nailed down and is still there."—Detroit Free Press.

The Old Cambridge Bridge.

You now cross the bridge at night through a circle of radiant lights glancing in brilliant lines through all the suburbs, but in the old nights there was here and there in the distance a dim oil lamp. In time oil gave place to kerosene, then came gas, then electricity, and still the brighter the lamps the more they multiplied. The river itself was different. There were far more vessels, and I have myself been hailed on the bridge and offered money to pilot a coasting schooner to Watertown. Seals also came above the wharfs and gave Lowell the material for one of his best stories, but one which he never, I think, quite ventured to print. He saw two farmer lads watching from the bridge one of these visitors as he played in the water. "Waal, neaow," said one of the youths, "be them kind o' critters common up this way, do ye suppose? Be they—or be they?" "Waal," responded the other, "dunno's they be and dunno ez they be." This perfect flower of New England speech, twin blossoms on one stem, delighted Lowell hugely, and it was so unexampled in my own experience that it always inspired in me a slight distrust, as being too good to be true.—Colonel T. W. Higginson in Atlantic.

ERRORS IN OUR EYES.

WHY THE USE OF SPECTACLES IS FAST BECOMING UNIVERSAL.

Many Nervous Troubles Traced to Malformation of the Visual Organs—Helmholtz's Discovery of Refractive Errors In the Mechanism of the Eye.

Eyeglasses or spectacles properly adjusted afford in many instances positive relief from a long list of nervous disorders. The human eye is intimately connected with the nerve center of the brain, over which it exerts a strong sympathetic influence. If there is anything radically wrong with the delicate mechanism of the organ of vision, its effect is soon apparent in the nervous system. There may be no signs of trouble in the eye itself, so far as the uninitiated observer is able to detect, but to the expert ophthalmologist the symptoms are unerring and infallible. This is the assertion of leading specialists in diseases of the eye, and it has the unqualified indorsement of reputable opticians. In it may be found the cause for the fast spreading use of spectacles in all parts of the civilized world where the modern theories of medical practice and physiological conditions obtain. The almost universal use of glasses does not indicate an extension of impaired vision in the human race or the existence of any new optical troubles; it means simply that experts are trying by artificial means to remedy the defects of nature.

It is only within the last 50 years that the mechanism of the human eye has been really understood. Previous to 1856, when Helmholtz mastered the details of the workings of this important part of the body and astonished even the medical profession with his wonderful discovery, it was the custom to treat the eye on the same basis as other organs. If a man was clubfooted, the malformation was readily apparent, and the only remedy was in the use of the surgeon's knife. So long as both legs and feet were truly formed and evenly mated there was no call for medical or surgical aid unless the patient could locate some well defined interior trouble. And so it was with the eyes. If a man was afflicted with strabismus or cataract, it could be easily seen and relief afforded by the proper operation. Not even the most advanced thinkers had any idea that there might be a radical malformation in the mechanism of vision of which there was no outward evidence. Thus it was the wearing of glasses was confined to those old people whose sight was confirmedly bad and to a comparatively few of young or middle aged who by chance found the use of spectacles a help. Sufferers from visual defects were almost as numerous in proportion to population then as now, but their troubles were not understood, and consequently no general attempt was made to correct them.

Helmholtz discovered that it was possible for nature to err in regulating man's vision in much the same way as it might send him into the world malformed in other parts of the body. He found that the eye is subject to what are called refractive errors which seriously affect the powers of accommodation and induce an abnormal strain, which, if long continued, has an injurious effect upon the nervous system and finally upon the vision itself. The range of the visual field depends upon the form of the eye.

If both eyes are perfect in construction and identically alike, the vision will be normal, but Helmholtz demonstrated to the satisfaction of the profession that nature does not always do its work truly, and that many individuals are afflicted with misformed visual organs. To make these misformed organs perform their work acceptably to the owner requires an unconscious forcing or strain on the power of accommodation, which results in a disordered condition, called asthenopia. People thus afflicted will struggle along, ignorant of the real cause of trouble, until compelled to consult a physician for relief from nervous affections, when they will be surprised to learn that it is spectacles, not medicines, they need.

Asthenopia includes pains in the eyelids and in the forehead over the eyes, in the top and back of the head and in the sides of the head just back of the eyes and is frequently accompanied by extreme nausea and general debility. When failure to obtain relief by the use of ordinary remedies demonstrates the fact that the trouble does not lie in ordinary causes, the careful physician will at once suggest the consultation of an eye specialist. This usually results in the discovery of a refractive error of some kind which is readily remedied by the use of properly fitted glasses, and in a short time all symptoms of asthenopia disappear. Explanation of this lies in the fact that the glasses restore the vision to the normal stage and by doing this stop the forced strain on the powers of accommodation, and this in turn relieves the nervous system.

Man is endowed with only a certain amount of what may be termed visual energy. At the early age of 10 years it is easy to note a beginning of the exhaustion of this energy; at 30 two-fifths of the visual power is usually gone, and at 50 years fully eight-tenths of the sight energy of the average individual is exhausted. Women and children are in the main the greatest sufferers from defective vision, because they are, as a rule, the most careless in the treatment of their eyes. The use of glasses is abhorrent to them as indicating the approach of old age and are only put on under compulsion. Dr. James A. Lydston, an authority on the subject, says there are two extremes to be avoided if the vision is to be retained unimpaired. One is overillumination; the other is underillumination. Too much light is in the end almost as bad as a scarcity of light.—Chicago Tribune.

FIGHTS WATER BUGS.

A MAN IN BOSTON WHO MAKES THAT HIS BUSINESS.

Takes Contracts of Ridding Hotels and Residences of Cockroaches and the Pestiferous Bugs and Has Made a Thorough Study of the Subject.

The Pied Piper who charmed away rats and reptiles in olden times has faded into a misty legend, but that a successor of his still lives and does a flourishing business few people are aware. It is a fact, however, that in Boston there lives at the present time a man who gets his living by stamping out vermin of every description. He doesn't go about as did his early predecessor, with a curious costume and a magic pipe, for his instruments of warfare are all contained in a neat leather satchel. Neither does he look a bit like a magician, for he is quite a young man, with blue eyes and light mustache and hair. His name is G. B. De Lue, and his place of business is on a crooked little alley known as Avery street.

He is a first rate, all round vermin hunter, but his specialty is the obnoxious water bug. I first got his address from the steward of one of the hotels, from which he had stampeded all the aforesaid "bugs."

So sure is the hunter of his success that he usually takes a contract to rid the premises for a certain length of time, say a year.

I found him very pleasant, and, as might be expected, well up in the peculiarities and habits of the bugs in question.

"In the first place," said he, "there are not so very many real cockroaches. They are about two inches long and differ in many particulars from the water bugs, whose greatest length is only about three-quarters of an inch. Cockroaches breathe from little openings all along their bodies, ten on each side. The scientific name is Periplaneat orientalis, and, as the name implies, it came from the orient. It is calculated that the first roach landed in England not more than 400 years ago. Since then the family has come to the front rapidly. Although not on the passenger list, they doubtless came over in the Mayflower.

"The water bug is a variety with a still harder name, but is, no doubt, used to hard names."

Mr. De Lue goes gunning for them with powder and gun. The powder is his own invention and is as deadly as the far famed knockout drops upon the unsuspecting human victim. The gun is a bellows contrivance of mammoth proportions. He hunts the bugs by daylight, as they are all then hidden away in crannies.

"What would be the effect of dropping a small pinch of powder upon a single bug placed upon the table?"

"The bug would be dead before he could run to the edge. There are five or six different ingredients, all of which are fatal. They stick to the bug's feet and feelers, and he poisons himself by drawing the latter through his mouth to cleanse them. I have spilled a box of powder on the floor and seen a water bug walk into it and drop in the middle of the heap.

"For a great hotel, one having countless bathrooms and miles of plumbing, I sometimes use as much as 60 pounds of powder. You see, the bugs are originally from warm climates, and they therefore stay chiefly around the kitchen, where there is the most heat.

"If I once thoroughly clear out a private house, not a bug will be seen for as many as three years oftentimes. Hotels do not last nearly so long, because they are constantly bringing them in, often in the straw in which wine is packed, etc."

The cockroach is the original 16 to 1 advocate. The egg cases, which are laid with alarming frequency, are little brown purses, about half an inch long, each containing 16 little roaches, no more, no less, packed in two rows as neatly as cigarettes. They are white when hatched, but rapidly turn by exposure to the air. The little water bug is even more prolific, for his family increases at the rate of from 32 to 40 at a clip.

When the good old warship Minnesota arrived in Boston and was turned over to the boys of the naval brigade, they found the vessel fairly swarming with large and small roaches. They could be scooped up by the handful. Commander Weeks almost despaired of rendering the ship habitable, but sent for the bug hunter, and the roaches had a bad day of it. None has been seen since.

Mr. De Lue was born in Maine, but has lived in Boston for the last 24 years. He was for many years connected with the hotel and restaurant business, and it was owing to the difficulty of fighting these unpleasant pests that he first started out to solve the problem.

He had tried all the old fashioned remedies and finally discovered this nonpoisonous compound about six years ago. He experimented with it for three years, and finally, becoming convinced that it would do the work, started in to make bug killing his business. He has from the first worked for all the notable Boston hotels. He modestly does not claim to be the first in the business. "In the old days," he said, "a man could only take care of three or four large houses. Now I can attend to 70 or 80 with no more difficulty. People won't believe me when I tell them that each little egg sack really contains as many as 40 bugs, but I held one once in my hand until it hatched with the heat and then showed it to the man I was talking to. The first of the little bugs were running around looking for a place to hide before the last were out of the sack. They were little white specks at first, but then the little folded legs opened out, and they commenced to travel. The eyes were tiny black specks.

"The bug hunting season is dullest in cold weather, the two months when bugs are thickest being in September and October. Where I get my success is in stopping breeding. The small bugs are killed just about as soon as they are hatched, and it's just as important to kill 16 young ones as one old one. They are smart and intelligent too. Oftentimes you will see them come out and watch you, with their feelers waving in the air. If you make a move for them, they will dive out of sight. I don't suppose the general public knows that the life of the average cockroach is at least five years, at which age he is several hundred times a grandfather and has about two bushels of descendants."—Boston Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No Nourishment.

A little girl had been ill and had struggled through the early stage of convalescence. She had taken "nourishing" broths and "nourishing" jellies until her soul was weary of them.

One morning she electrified the family by sitting bolt upright in bed and saying: "I want you to take notice. I'm not going to take any more nourishment. I'm hungry, and I want my dinner, and not another mouthful of nourishment will I eat."—London Fun.

The Chemistry of Debt.

In the processes of chemistry the various elements appear and disappear and undergo the greatest changes. None of these is so strange, however, as the chemical change undergone by money after it has passed from the lender's pocket to the borrower's. Before its transfer the borrower reverenced it from afar; he sighed for it, perhaps begged for it. He was at first so sure that it would be punctually returned that this really seemed to take away half the merit of the lending. When it was once transferred to his own pocket, however, it began to seem a very trifling thing to have lent it or borrowed it—for are we not all brethren?—and in a little while it seemed to nestle into its new home like an adopted kitten and to wish to be disturbed no more.

It really seems to require a very strong and clear mind, after 24 hours, to regard a borrowed dollar as still belonging rightfully to the man who lent it. If it be not properly the borrower's, how is it that his fingers and his purse close over it so peacefully and happily? May it not be, after all, that he has misremembered, and that he did not actually borrow the money, but that it came, by some august decree of fate, into the hands of the very person who needed it most? It would be wrong, he feels inwardly, to interfere with any such proper and useful decree of Providence by any petty refunding of the debt.—Harper's Bazar.

Polly's Mirrors.

Every Saturday Polly has to scour the spoons. That is all that mamma asks her to do, and it does not take much time, but Polly has always dreaded it so long beforehand and grumbled so while she rubbed them that it seemed like very hard work indeed. Every week it was the same old story, and you would think that the little girl was asked to clean the family plate in some old mansion.

But last Saturday mamma heard her laughing all by herself in the kitchen and asked what she was doing.

"Making mirrors, mamma!" shouted Polly gleefully.

So mamma came to see. Polly was rubbing away on a spoon, and when it grew quite bright and shiny, sure enough, there was a little mirror in the bowl of the spoon, and such a funny Polly reflected there, with very fat cheeks and very small eyes and no hair. When she moved her head, her cheeks grew thin and her eyes as large and round as an owl's. How Polly did laugh!

Then she scoured another spoon, and soon there was another tiny looking glass and another queer little Polly.

When she had 12 of these droll little mirrors, her work was done, and she was surprised to find that it was only play, after all.—Youth's Companion.

A Widow's Wit.

"Make the doors upon a woman's wit, and it will out at the casement."

A pretty widow, who is celebrated in her circle of friends for her clever repartee, added to former laurels by a bright dash of wit.

She was entertaining, quite informally, an old clergyman and a handful of family friends. The children of the house were brought to the dining table for dessert.

In leaving the room when the meal was over the younger guests stood aside to allow the whitehaired priest to pass out first.

He in turn stood aside and gently pushed the youngsters through the doorway. "Angels first," he said, laughing.

He glanced at the hostess as if inviting her to follow next in turn. But the widow, quick as a flash, waved him before her. "Saints next," she said, laughing too.—New York Advertiser.

THURSDAY MORNING, OCT. 28, 1897

SPAIN'S REPLY.

The Long Expected Cablegram from Minister Woodford Received at the State Department.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, October 27.—The event of the day at the State Department was the receipt of the long expected cablegram from United States Minister Woodford at Madrid, transmitting the answer of the Spanish government to his representations in the interests of peace in Cuba. This message began to come in installments at 2 o'clock last night, and it was nearly noon to-day before it was all in hand at the State Department. It was not the length of the message that occupied the wires all of that time, but the fact that it was all in groups of figures, and that it was probably being filed in small batches as it was turned into the complicated State Department cipher in Madrid. All of this work had to be undone at the State Department and the message translated from the cipher back again into good English. This occupied nearly all of the day, so that it was half-past three o'clock before the first fair copy of the message was turned out. It was not so long, in fact there were a little less than one thousand words in the message, for Mr. Woodford, instead of cabling the whole of the Spanish answer to his note, had contented himself with reducing the matter to a brief outline. The first copy was taken at once to the President, not being entrusted to a messenger, but being delivered by Chief Clerk Michaels in person at the White House. After due opportunity had been allowed the President to read the message, an application was made for a statement of its contents or nature. This was declined by Secretary Porter, and it was said that under no circumstances would the correspondence be made public before consideration by the Cabinet.

From unofficial information that has reached certain administration officials in advance of this message of Mr. Woodford's, as to the nature of the Spanish reply, it is evident that in neither language nor subject matter is the communication likely to be taken as offensive by our government. It may be, it is true, regarded as insufficient to meet the issue presented by Mr. Woodford in his note, but officials of the State Department say that in view of what has already been accomplished by the new Spanish cabinet in reforming abuses in Cuba, in removing Weyler, and in projecting what appears to be a liberal measure of autonomy, our government will certainly rest, at least until Congress assembles, and afford the new Spanish government a reasonable time to carry out its plans.

WILL OF G. M. PULLMAN.

The Total Value of the Estate $7,600,000.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The will of G. M. Pullman was filed for probate this afternoon. To his widow he left the homestead on Prairie avenue. Sufficient funds are also set aside to provide her with an income of $50,000 yearly during her life. One million dollars each is left in trust for his two daughters, Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, of Chicago, and Mrs. Carolan, of San Francisco. An income of but $3,000 yearly is provided for his two sons, George M. Pullman, Jr., and Sanger W. Pullman. Mrs. Lowden is also given the Summer residence, known as Castle Rest, on an island in the St. Lawreace river. About $150,000 in sums of $10,000 and $30,000 is left to various charitable institutions in Chicago. A sum of $300,000 is given for the erection of a manual training school in Pullman, which is also endowed with $1,200,000. Five old employes are given $5 000 each. Two sisters and two brothers of the dead millionaire are given $50,000 each and another brother gets $25 000. If the estate shall be more than sufficient to satisfy all the devices, trusts and legacies named, the executors are directed to divide the excess into two equal shares and add the same respectively to the two portions set aside for the daughters, Mrs. Lowden and Mrs. Carolan.

The total value of the estate is shown by the petition for letters testamentary to be $7,600,000. Of this amount $6,800,000 is personal property and $800,000 realty. Attorney Runnells, who prepared the will said these figures are a fair but conservative estimate of the value of the estate.

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, October 27.—The cotton market opened firm with prices 5 to 8 points higher in sympathy with favorable cables from Liverpool. Indications of a small port movement also tended to strengthen bullish sentiment and for a time the market showed a very steady under tone. Subsequently English advices, however, proved very disappointing, and in the liquidation of early purchases which followed, prices broke 4 to 6 points. Renewed buying by commission houses and by Southern representatives again steadied the market and at 11 o'clock prices were 5 to 7 points higher than the final figures of yesterday.

THE LUETGERT CASE.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

No Improvement Expected There Until Colder Weather Sets In—Conditions at Montgomery, Mobile and Selma Unchanged — The Record of New Cases and Deaths at Various Points.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., October 27.—Selma's Board of Health to-day reported no new cases and no deaths. The citizens have quieted down and business is looking up.

NEW ORLEANS, October 27.—The warm weather which prevailed here today has had no appreciable effect on the yellow fever situation, there being a high death rate; but despite this fact, the situation as compared with that of yesterday, which was not reassuring, is about the same.

The Board of Health officials are not at all alarmed and are untiring in their efforts to confine the disease, though it is admitted that the cases will not fall off until colder weather puts in. To-day the camp of detention at Oakland park was closed.

The increased daily death rate is convincing the unbelievers that the prevailing fever is genuine yellow jack. The famigating corps is being worked as hard as it can go, being sent from one end of the city to the other.

There were forty-nine new cases and eight deaths to-day.

MOBILE, ALA., October 27.—The record for to-day is three deaths and five new cases. Total cases to date, 224; deaths, 29; recoveries, 161; under treatment, 34.

JACKSON, MISS., October 27.—A statement issued by the State Board of Health to-night shows that there have been two new cases of yellow fever at Cayuga, and one case near Raymond to-day. No new cases are reported from the other infected points.

The authorities have not as yet set a definite date when refugees will be allowed to return to the city.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., October 27.—The official report of the Board of Health at noon to-day makes seven cases for the day; previously reported, 70; no deaths to-day. All these new cases are in the same section of the town where the fiast case was located. There have been a number of recoveries, but as yet none of the doctors have reported them.

MEMPHIS, TENN., October 27.—Five new cases and two deaths is the yellow fever record in Memphis for the twenty-four hours ending to-night. The weather continues warm. Another thousand people left the city during the day and evening.

BILOXI, MISS., October 27.—New cases to-day, 17; suspicious of yellow fever, 1.

Scranton, Miss.—Nine new cases and one death.

Pascagoula, Miss.—Two new cases.

Bay St. Louis, Miss.—Five new cases.

McHenry, Miss.—One new case.

GREATER NEW YORK.

Republican Leaders Claim That Tracy Will be Elected by a First Rate Plurality.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, October 27.—Following a long caucus of Republican district leaders to-day, President McQuigg, of the Republican committee, gave out the following statement:

The Republican organization has carefully canvassed the vote in every election district of every borough in the new city. Several Assembly districts have been canvassed twice and some have been canvassed three times. Each of these repeated canvasses shows that Tracy's strength is growing and that Low's support, which has never been large, becomes smaller every day. There are only two Assembly districts in New York city in which Mr. Low will have any substantial Republican support. The net effect of Mr. Low's candidacy will be to increase the majorities of the Republican party over Van Wyck. Low's vote will be smaller than Van Wyck's in each district. We shall carry New York for Tracy by just about the plurality over Van Wyck which was obtained by Governor Black last year over Porter.

In Brooklyn the situation is similar to the situation in New York, but the proportion of Democrats to Republicans in Low's following will naturally be smaller than it is here. There the proportion will be about half and half; the plurality for Tracy over Van Wyck will be greater in Brooklyn than in New York and is likely to reach 40,000.

Low's vote will leave the two great parties, as to comparative strength, in just about their normal conditions, but George's vote will so reduce Van Wyck's as to give us for Tracy a first rate plurality. On the conditions as they exist to-day Low might have in Brooklyn as many as 80,000, or to be liberal, 35,000 votes. But his Republican support is rapidly falling away from him. There are thousands of Republicans who have been mislead by the New York Tribune and the New York Mail and Express into the idea that Low has some chance of election. They are finding out now that this idea is preposterous and that it is being circulated by these newspapers maliciously and dishonestly. This fact is getting abroad throughout the wards in Brooklyn, where the Low boom has been inflated with the natural result that the gas is going out of the boom and the boom is collapsing.

General Daniel E. Sickles to-day announced that he would vote and work for General Tracy and the whole Republican ticket.

BRYAN IN OHIO.

Began His Campaigning Tour at Montpelier —Thousands of People Assembled to Hear Him.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

VAN WERT, OHIO, October 27.—W. J. Bryan began a short campaigning tour in Ohio this morning. He travelled in a private car. The first meeting was at Montpelier, where an audience of five thousand persons from all parts of the county had assembled. Mr. Bryan questioned the honesty of the vote of Ohio last year and then took up the silver question. He said the Republican party promised last year to do what it could to get rid of the gold standard. He then reviewed the work of the monetary commission which President McKinley sent to Europe, and said its mission had failed because the money changers was opposed to it. Mr. Bryan attributed the improved financial condition of the United States to the discovery of gold in Alaska and to the famine in India, which he said the Republicans were rejoicing over, even though the famine resulted in the loss of thousands of lives.

From Montpelier the train was hurried to Defiance, where an afternoon meeting was held. There was a large crowd at the depot as the train arrived in Defiance and crowds had assembled at the stations along the way. An audience of five thousand people, a majority of whom were Republicans, it is said, listened to the Defiance speech, which did not differ materially from that delivered at Montpelier. The applause was liberal, though it was apparent that Mr. Bryan was less of an attraction than when, as a Presidential candidate, he visited Ohio last Fall.

Mob law was severely condemned by Governor Atkinson in his message to the Georgia Legislature which convened yesterday.

DISASTERS TO SHIPPING.

MANY MARINE MISHAPS ON THE NORTH ALANTIC COAST.

A German Steamship Ashore Off Cape Henry —Life-Savers Unable to Rescue Crew and Passengers—Tugs Standing By to Render Assistance.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CAPE MAY, N. J., October 27.—While the hurricane has practically passed, its effects on the Jersey coast and in Delaware bay and river are still sorely felt, and shipping casualties continue to be reported.

The steamer Rubenstein, from Sunderland for Baltimore, which broke her mainshaft during the blow, was found drifting to-night ten miles off the capes, and was brought to harbor by the steam pilot boat Philadelphia.

The British steamer Lumen, from Philadelphia for Gotchenburg, grounded above Lincoln park to-day, but was floated by tugs, after discharging part of her cargo of oil, and is anchored at League Island.

The schooner Emma B. Shaw, which grounded on Reedy island dyke yesterday and subsequently floated, again grounded to-day off Reedy island light.

The Italian barque Francisco R., deserted by her crew last night, sunk in eighteen feet of water and her cargo is washing ashore.

The steamer Mavoyck, from Boston, reports passing between Atlantic City and Cape May a lot of wreckage, and in Delaware Bay a sloop yacht, lying on her beam-ends.

To-night the wind is moderate, but a drizzling rain is falling, with heavy fog.

NORFOLK, VA., October 27.—The German freight and passenger steamer Polaria, from Galveston, October 18th, for Hamburg, via Norfolk, which went ashore off Cape Henry last night, lies in practically the same position to-night. None of her crew or of the small number of passengers aboard her have been landed, but the ship is resting easily and is in no immediate danger of breaking up. The life-saving crew have been strenuously endeavoring throughout the day to get a line to the stranded ship. They have fired the Lyle gun nine times, but each time the shot carrying the line fell short of the ship. The heavy surf which is being piled up by the wild northeast gale has prevented their launching a boat.

Wrecking tugs were sent from this city early in the day, and the Merritt Wrecking Company, which has the contract to float the Polaria, got a line to her from the tug Jones, which pulled on her unsuccessfully. She is now lying alongside, ready to render aid in case the steamer shows signs of breaking up.

BOND-AIDED RAILROADS.

Government Accepts Offer of the Union Pacific Reorganization Committee—The Next Move Will Be Against the Central Pacific.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, October 27.—Attorney General McKenna to-day fully confirmed the statements heretoforement made by the Associated Press as the recent offer of the reorganization committee and its acceptance by the government, by which the full amount of the government's claim against the main line of the Union Pacific road, principal and interest, is guaranteed. This amount is something in excess of $58,000,000, and includes outstanding government bonds issued in aid of the road to the amount of $19,076,512. Of this sum $15 919,513 becomes due on January 1, 1898 and $3,157,000 on January 1, 1899. Whether or not the reorganization committee's original increased bid of $50 000,000 holds good to a proportionate share as to the Kansas Pacific is an open question. The master in chancery fixed this amount at approximately $5 000,000, and the contention undoubtedly will be that the guarantee offer as to this amount holds good. This question, however, is regarded as of little or no consequence, as it is confidently expected that at the Kansas Pacific sale, which no doubt will take place on December 15th, the reorganization committee will bid up to the full amount of the Government's claim and the first mortgage bonds. Their interest, it is said, would compel them to do this. If by any chance, however, the committee's bid should fall short of the full amount of the Government's claim, it is almost certain that the Government itself, acting under the authority conferred by the act of 1887, will be prepared to bid in the property. No such contingency, however, it is stated, is at all likely to arise, and the statement is made from high official sources that the net result of the deal with the re-organization committee will undoubtedly be the realization of the full amount of the Government's claims against both the Union Pacific and Kansas Pacific roads.

The next move of the Government toward a final settlement of the whole bond-aided railroad question, it is said, will be the institution of proceedings against the Central Pacific road. The Government has contended that this road is already in default, and therefore subject to foreclosure, but in any event, it is said, the road must default on the first of next January. On the first of the present month the Central Pacific's debt to the Government aggregated $61,824,468, of which amount $85,989,348 is unpaid interest and the remainder principal. In aid of this road the Government now has outstanding $19,811,120 in bonds, of which $10 814.190 fall due on January 1st next, and $9,197,000 on January 1st, 1899

THE CUBAN QUESTION.

Denial of the Statement That Minister De Lome Had Presented a Note to the United States on the Subject of Filibustering.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

MADRID, October 27.—A formal denial was issued by the Government of Spain to-day of the statement that the Spanish Minister at Washington, Senor Dupuy de Lome, had presented to the Government of the United States a note on the subject of filibustering expeditions which are alleged to have left American ports for Cuba. The Spanish Minister, it is explained, only made a verbal complaint to the Government at Washington regarding the departure of filibusters from ports in the United States.

The Cabinet sat four hours this evening and night and discussed all aspects of the Cuban question, both in relation to the United States and to the finances, which, according to Senor Puigcerver, the Minister of Finance, offer less serious complications than have been reported.

Lieutenant General Weyler has cabled the government renewed assurances of his loyalty and of his intention to prevent all demonstrations on his departure from Cuba.

A Madrid dispatch says: The Constitutional Conservative party, while condemning illegal action, has decided to constitutionally oppose the granting of an autonomous form of government to the island of Cuba.

FIRE AT ST. LOUIS.

Wabash Railroad General Offices Destroyed—Many Narrow Escapes—Loss Nearly a Million of Dollars.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

ST. LOUIS, October 27.—A lighted cigarette, dropped by a thoughtless clerk, is supposed to have caused the fire which this afternoon practically gutted the white stone building at the corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets, occupied by the general offices of the Wabash railroad.

At 1.25 o'clock, just after the clerks had returned from their noon recess, and were beginning work, a policeman standing on the corner below noticed a small tongue of flame shoot out from a window in the fifth story of the building, which was used as a storage attic. Instantly a puff of dense black smoke followed and the officer rushed into the building shouting the alarm. Instantly there was a confused rush for every means of exit. Fortunately the stairways were wide, the building in former years having been used for the public school library and the polytechnic institute.

The attic was stored with old papers and documents, and within five minutes was a roaring furnace. The whole floor seemed to suddenly burst into flame in every part. During all this excitement seven young women employed in one of the inner mailing rooms on the fourth floor had not been notified and were still working unconscious of their peril. When they did discover their situation, they found to their horror that it was impossible to reach the stairs, as the stairway was burning fiercely. They appeared at the window and a cry of horror went up from the streets.

"The fire escape!" shouted the crowd, and the young women, comprehending, disappeared and a moment later climbed out on the iron platform of the escape. They hesitated, but advancing flames gave them determination and they started on their descent, reaching the street in safety as a thundering cheer went up.

At 2.30 o'clock the fire, though still burning fiercely, was practically under control, and at 5 o'clock, with the exception of patches of burning embers, had been extinguished. An officer of the Wabash Company estimates their loss at $500,000. Statements place the valuation of the building at $400,000. The Wabash Company had occupied new quarters before the fire was under control.

AN INDIAN OUTBREAK.

Engagement Between State Wardens of Colorado and Ute Indians—Cavalry Ordered to the Scene of the Disturbance.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star,

WASHINGTON, October 27.—General Otis, commanding the Department of Colorado, has telegraphed Adjutant General Breck as follows concerning the Indian outbreak in Colorado:

"A telegram of last night to the Governor of Colorado reports an engagement between the State game wardens and the Ute Indians at Thompson's, near Lilly park, on Snake river, sixty miles east from Du Chesne, in which five Indians were killed, but no whites. A telegram of this afternoon from Lieut. Kirkman, commanding Camp Pilot, Butte, Wyo., reports that scouts just arrived and says there was an engagement at Thomson's last evening at 5 p. m. between Utes and game wardens, in which two bucks, one squaw, one papoose and two wardens were killed. Du Chesne notified this morning, and information asked, and this afternoon have directed Wright's troop of cavalry to the scene of reported disturbances. The cavalry squadron at Logan is directed to be held in readiness to proceed to Du Chesne. Heavy snow storm prevailing and telegraph lines working badly. If affairs look serious, will draw on Fort Douglass."

FLORIDA'S QUARANTINE.

Not Even a Suspicious Case of Yellow Fever in the State.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., October 27.—Judging from telegrams and letters received by officials of transportation lines leading to Florida, much erroneous opinion exists as to the health conditions of the State, owing to the prevalence of yellow fever in other States on the Gulf.

Florida is patrolled by vigilant and active representatives of the State Board of Health, and it can be stated upon the most positive authority that not a single symptomous or suspicious case of fever exists within the Florida border. A most rigid quarantine is in effect against all infected points in States to the west of Florida, and not a single case of yellow fever has been recorded in the State for a number of years, or since the establishment of the methods adopted by the State Board.

RAILROAD TRAIN STALLED

Tracks Matted With Seaweed and Covered with Water and Mud.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star,

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., October 27.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company started this morning to run the regular 8 45 o'clock express to Philadelphia, having decided to risk a run across the over inundated tracks. When about half across the meadows the train was stalled. The tracks were fairly matted with seaweed, besides being covered with water and mud. The passengers agreed to wait until the tracks were cleared. Big gangs of workmen are laboring to clear the way from Absecon out.

WALDORF OF THE SLUMS.

The New Mills Hotel in New York City Formally Opened Last Night.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, October 27.—The new Mills hotel, which has been designated the "Waldorf of the Slums," located on Bleecker street, this city, was opened this afternoon, Bishop Henry C. Potter, ex-Mayor Hewitt and Mr. Mills taking part in the ceremonies. The hotel, which is a nine-story fire-proof building, trimmed with light sand-stone, is provided with baths, elevators, electric light and steam heating apparatus. The main corridor, which is as elegant as any of the expensive hotels up town, has a marble tiled floor. The rates will be twenty cents per night, including bath. The hotel is built on the site of Depau row, once owned by the late A. T. Stewart, and it was there that Charles Dickens, the novelist, was entertained by the millionaire merchant. D. O. Mills, the owner of the hotel, says it will make money and is not a charity. He is building another hotel on the crowded east side.
